PHILSOC PRESENTS

University of Edinburgh Philosophy Society

ACADEMIC SUPPORT

Your Personal Tutor

Tutors Lecturers Course Organisers

PPLS Student Support Office

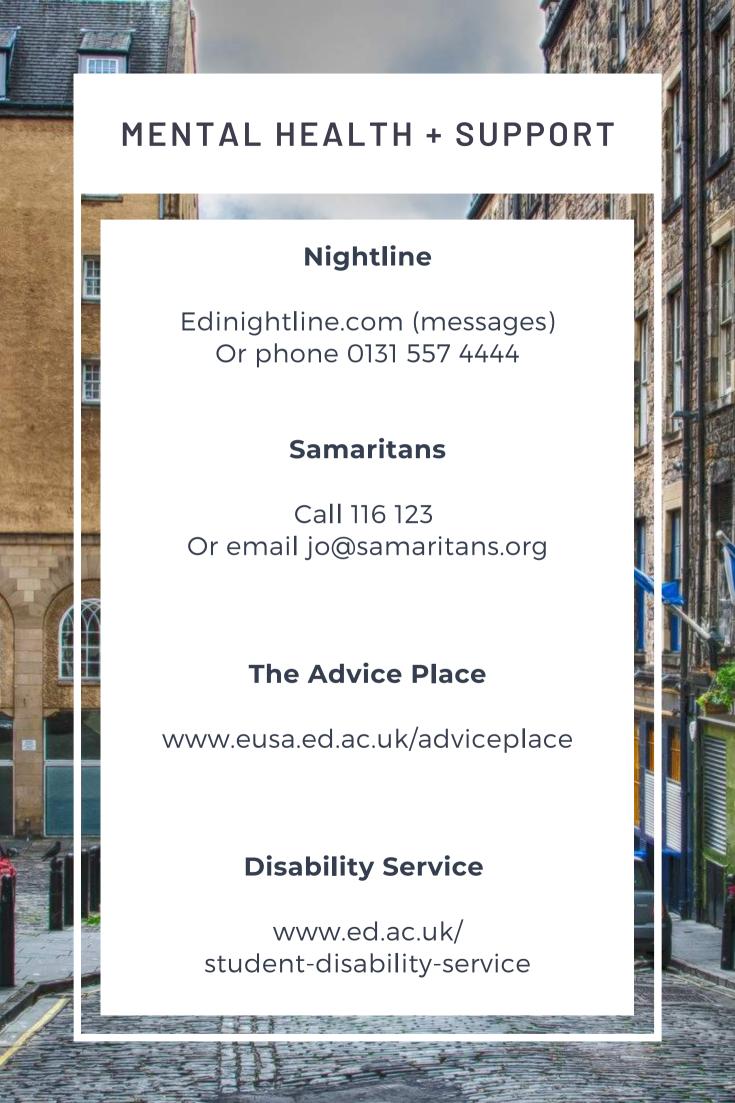

PhilPals

PhilSoc

Page: Edinburgh University Philosophy Society on FB

PPLS Writing Centre

www.skillscentre.ppls.ed.ac.uk

Money Saving Expert:

www.moneysavingexpert.com

The Advice Place:

www.eusa.ed.ac.uk/adviceplace

Discounts:

UniDays StudentBeans Totum

Jobs:

CareerHub: Accessed via EASE Indeed.co.uk Milkround.com

(These are also good for internship searching!)

Internships:

RateMyPlacement

MONEY + ADVICE

US + OTHER SOCIETIES

You can find a list of all societies here:

https://www.eusa.ed.ac.uk/activities/list

Our events:

Mondays: Book Club

Tuesdays: Reading Group

Wednesdays: Discussion Group

Thursdays: Lecture Series

Fridays: Pub Social + Logic Group TBC.

You can also check out other PPLS societies, such as PsychSoc, LingSoc and CogSciSoc.

There is also the PPLS intersocietal council which is the interdisciplinary collaboration of the four aforementioned societies, and is a great place for you to meet people within our school!

- Three Sisters has the Napier bar upstairs which serves £2 Tennets & Strongbow.
- Southsider is a cool pub where pints of Tennets £2 with a student card!
- Banshee Labyrinth has a really cool and spooky vibe, a free cinema & is apparently the most haunted bar in Edinburgh.
- The Sheep Heid Inn is a gastropub and the oldest pub in Edinburgh!
- Dog House has DOGS walking around and is just very cool.
- Pear Tree has a huge outdoor space, screens sports and is very pretty.
- Brassmonkey has beds to watch movies in, board games and fairly cheap drinks.
- Cold Town House have their own beer and a sort of beer garden upstairs.
- Malone's is a great Irish bar which is pretty nice for rugby games.
- Waterloo Bar is a small pub with lovely woodwork, very down-toearth.
- The Cuckoo's Nest has ping-pong, pool tables and hosts events such as quiz nights.
- Tron is super nice it offers Karaoke on Tuesdays and Thursdays.
- The Jazz Bar offers a unique live music roster with which no other bar can compete! Reopening September 1st.
- Stramash hosts live music and has a cool, gothic atmosphere as well as some books upstairs.
- Panda and Sons is hidden in a barber shop; you have to push a book case to get in.
- Hoot the Redeemer is a similar bar to Panda and Sons; a dive bar with a twist.

FOOD PLACES

- Dishoom does bottomless chai until 5m. Authentic Indian dining experience with great vegan options.
- Nile Valley offers the best falafel wrap.
- Africano Wrap similar to Nile Valley and only next door, so choose either!
- @Pizza offers both tasty pizza AND tasty vegan pizza. Delicious!
- Paradise Palms offers great veggie options and has an on-site record store.
 Also a bar - if it's good enough for Irvine Welsh, it's good enough for us!
- The Holy Cow is a tiny, vegan restaurant with lovely staff and amazing food.
- 10 to 10 in Delhi has authentic Indian fare with decent prices and a very welcoming atmosphere.
- Kismot is a family owned business and has amazing Indian food!
- Taco Libre is tucked away past Princes street and has authentic Mexican food.

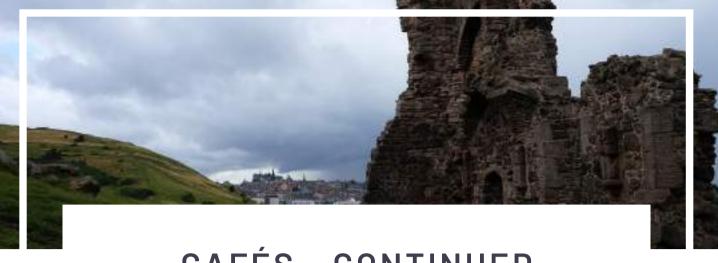

MORE FOOD PLACES

- Noodles and Dumplings has some of the best noodles in town and a great variety. Their vegan noodles are amazing.
- Wings sells chicken, beer and rum. They have some board games and offer flavours from super hot to creamy and cheesy to just plain.
- Streets of Beijing is an authentic Chinese restaurant in the heart of Edinburgh. The restaurant is well decorated and serves delicious Peking duck.
- Bonnie Burrito offers naked burritos which are gluten free. The brand started from a Mexican street food van and is absolutely delicious.
- Piemaker has a huge range of affordable, delicious pies.
- Tuk Tuk in Bruntsfield. Offers amazing Indian street food.
- Maki & Ramen on Nicholson Street close to campus and tasty food.

- Considerit has an amazing plant based range of doughnuts and ice cream. A must visit & is located right next to the Meadows!
- Mimi's Bakehouse has three locations in Edinburgh and offers amazing vegan brownies and offers the cutest teacup setting.
- Honeycomb Tearoom a lovely café with vegetarian and vegan options and delicious food.
- Kilimanjaro Coffee near the Tesco around campus is a chill place with some lovely coffee.
- Greenwood is a new queer café, offering vegan food and a 'safe sober space'.
- Forest Café is a lovely, vegan friendly place which is very close to campus.
- Black Medicine is a super hip café which is really close to campus, offering great hot drinks and food.
- Coffee Lounge is right near campus and has a lovely atmosphere, and great coffee!
- Naked Bakery has plenty of vegan options including mac n cheese!
- Southern Cross has generous portions, great food and lovely staff.

CAFÉS - CONTINUED

- Olly Bongos café on Teviot Place an institution, which has been there for years, serves everything from cooked breakfasts to Greek and Mediterranean dishes. Great value!
- Love Crumb on West Port for insanely good coffee, teas and cakes (good vegan options).
- Mary's Milk Bar in the Grassmarket, for the best homemade ice cream, coffee and hot chocolate.
- Under the Stairs on Merchant Street, a bit more pricey, but really good and interesting food, it is only open Thursday to Sunday.
- Soderberg Pavilion in Lister Square, Quartermile Swedish baking and excellent sour dough pizzas. Good outside seating area.
- Fatty Owls has excellent art deco-meets-charity shop decor and plenty of vegan options. The owners are absolutely lovely as well.
- Himalayan café has amazing authentic drinks & food and a very cozy atmosphere.
- Dai Pai offers a free cake with their amazing hot drinks.

SHOPS

Hing Sing Chinese is a Chinese supermarket which offers great values on essentials such as noodles, sauces and, most importantly, spices.

Touch of Poland is located near campus. It offers all sorts of delicious Polish snacks and pierogi that you can dig out of the freezer when sick.

Mr Wood's Fossils sell actual fossils and are located in the Grass Market, just off campus (which is a super nice area with lots of great places to eat!)

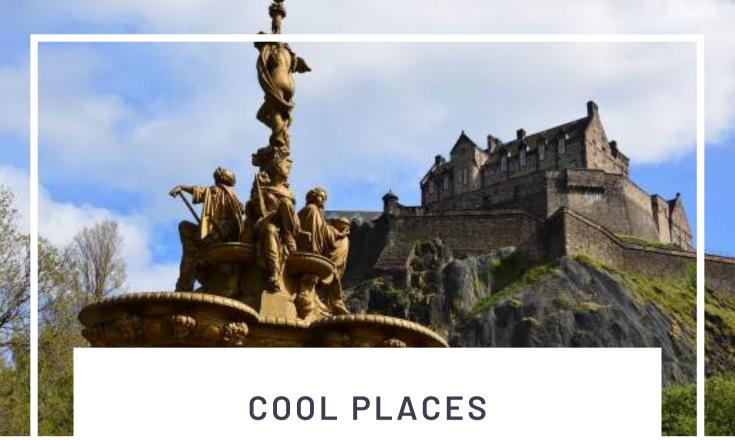

Margiotta has multiple locations and is a really good supermarket with a great selection of ready pastries.

Jordan Valley offers an amazing tea selection and tasty wraps. They also stock cupboard essentials such as dried beans and delicious Syrian flatbread.

Starlight is one of the largest Asian supermarkets and stocks a wide range of niche items.

Maqbool's on Potterrow is a halal supermarket that sells ingredients for many different cuisines, including Indian, Lebanese, Kurdish, and many others. Great for buying in bulk.

The Refillery on Newington Road is a plastic-free grocery store with excellent options for buying in bulk. They sell everything from produce to grains to spices.

The Artiscience Library at Summerhall

(www.ascus.org.uk/artiscience-library/) is a library and reading room run by Colin Sanderson. It is one of Edinburgh's best-kept secrets, for sure.

Portobello Beach is a lovely location, rain or shine. It's a fantastic picnic locale, and there are plenty of cute cafés and food trucks along the promenade.

Cramond is another beautiful beach, and at low tide, Cramond Island becomes accessible. Be sure to give yourself enough time to head back so that you don't get stuck!

Craigmillar Castle in south-east Edinburgh is a Medieval ruin from the 14th century. Admission is very affordable and you will be able to explore the castle as well as the grounds.

University of Edinburgh Anatomical Museum is rarely open, so you'll have to do some digging, but it's a very interesting visit.

Gorgie City Farm is a little piece of countryside right in the heart of Edinburgh, home to many much loved animals. Entry is free but donations are encouraged.

Surgeon's Hall is a museum located very close to campus. It's full of weird and creepy things, so not suitable for the very squeamish, but is a wonderful hour or so visit. Great student discount offered.

Wild West Morningside is one of the strangest places in Edinburgh, this little piece of the Wild West is tucked away in an alleyway and offers things like a saloon and stables.

Maison de Moggy is a café but it does not belong with the rest as cats roam the space. A treat for any cat lovers.

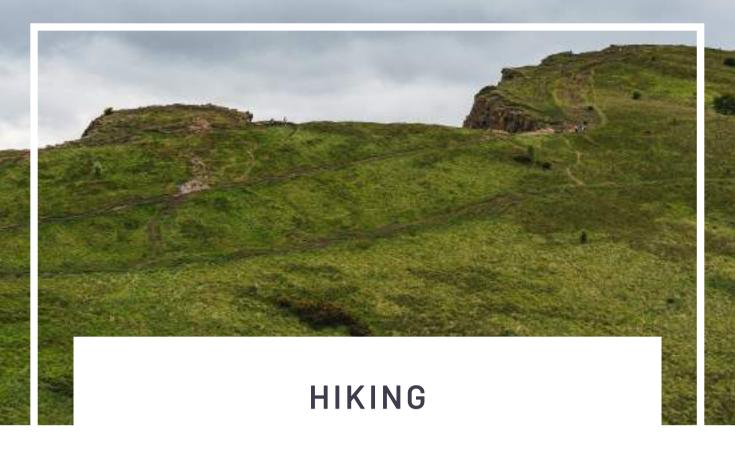

The Edinburgh Chihuahua Café has a self-explanatory name. It's the same principle as the usual cat café, but with chihuahas!

Lighthouse at Western Harbour is gradually falling to pieces, with smashed windows and damaged doors. It was built in the 1950s, but has since become a haunting ruin - branded an 'eyesore' by locals.

The Water of Leith is the main river flowing near central Edinburgh, Scotland, and flows into the port of Leith where it flows into the sea via the Firth of Forth.

Dean village is a bucolic village abutting a tranquil stream, with gardens, 19th-century buildings & a museum.

The Pentland Hills are a beautiful hike just outside the city, with gorgeous views and well-kept trails.

The Salisbury Crags, next to Arthur's Seat, are a less lengthy hike but still just as beautiful, with a spectacular view of the city, as well as Duddingston Lake and the landscape around it.

Hermitage of Braid and Blackford HIII offer views over the city from hillside walking trails and a riverside valley teeming with nature.

Craiglockhart Hill is a combination of two summits, Easter and Wester Craiglockhart, in the suburb of Craiglockhart, Edinburgh.

Costorphine Hill is one of the hills of Edinburgh named for nearby Corstorphine. There are traditionally said to be seven hills in Edinburgh in reference to the Seven hills of Rome, but this figure is debatable, and as the city has expanded, even more so.

OUTSIDE EDINBURGH

North Berwick is just over an hour bus ride away. However, the castle, shops and general place are lovely.

Yellowcraig Beach is also located in North Berwick - it's a wonderful place for some nature time.

Highland Cows can be seen on Swanston farm (about a 20-30min bus from Edinburgh) or BeeCraigs Park (which is an hour bus away but an attraction in itself!).

Stirling Castle is about a 40min train from Edinburgh but the castle is definitely worth the trip. The streets are also beautiful and it has some really nice places to eat.

Dunblane is a city about an hour outside of Edinburgh, with a beautiful trail meandering through its woods. It also has a gorgeous cathedral and a small museum and library. Also, excellent ice cream.

Gilmerton Cove is a series of underground passageways and chambers hand-carved from sandstone located beneath the streets of Gilmerton.

The Meadows Share - The Meadows Share is a Facebook group for those within walking distance of the Meadows to share resources, tools, skills, information etc. There is a lot of sister shares that they include in their "about" bit which might be useful, too.

Black and Minority Ethnic Students at the University of Edinburgh - offers support to BME students as well as those of mixed descent and other minority ethnic groups (including Jewish and Romani). It allows a safe space for discussion and support. This is a campaign group, too, to improve BME student experience.

LGBT+ Students at The University of Edinburgh - offers a safe space and support for individuals who identify as LGBT+. LGBT+ students can discuss issues affecting them and campaign to improve their experience.

Disabled Students at The University of Edinburgh - where self-identifying disabled students can come together, discuss the issues affecting them, and campaign to improve their student experience.

Edinburgh Seed, Plant and Garden Share - if you like plants, this is a sharing group where you can get advice about your plants, swap cuttings/saplings/bulbs etc. with others and hear about plant-related events around Edinburgh.

This student guide was created by the University of Edinburgh Philosophy Society.

This guide is not affiliated directly with the University of Edinburgh and all advice should be taken with a pinch of salt. Please check closing times of locations before visiting, as due to Covid-19 some places may have changed their times or are temporarily closed. Please mind your surroundings whilst exploring. Stay safe.

We really hope you can join our society for some events this year. Even if you have 0 interest in Philosophy, we hope this guide will be useful to you.

> Design and Content: Monika Zon Editor: Ariane Branigan